

BT-Citibank Undergraduate Investment Forum 2009

STUDENTS from the four Singapore universities have been invited to come together on Sept 5 to network and learn more about investing from industry professionals. The theme of the Business Times-Citibank Undergraduate Investment Forum 2009 is “Insights to Financial Instruments”, and it is organised by the Association of Varsities’ Investment Clubs.

The full-day event is aimed at cultivating a deeper interest in investing among undergraduates and facilitating the sharing and networking among like-minded individuals from schools and industry. A discussion panel entitled “Managing Investments in these current times” will kickstart the forum. There will also be five seminars on the market outlook for four different asset classes: Equities, Commodities, ETFs, Forex, and Fundamentals of Asset Allocation. The forum hopes to educate undergraduates on different asset classes and diversification to reduce risks.

Held at the Singapore Management University (SMU) campus in the heart of the city, the forum is free and open to all undergraduates from SMU, the Nanyang Technological University, National University of Singapore and Singapore Institute of Management.

Those interested can enquire and register with their respective investment clubs by Sept 1.
